

Academic Faculty Positions in Neurology

The University of Illinois at Chicago is undergoing a major expansion in all areas of neurology, with a strong emphasis on building world-class clinical and multidisciplinary translational research programs. Multiple faculty positions, including leadership positions, are available at any rank on either a clinical, tenure or non-tenure track. Generous start-up resources will be made available for each position. The department has a rich history in US neurology with strengths in vascular disease and systems biology, however, all subspecialty areas not limited to epilepsy, neuro-oncology, neuromuscular, MS, rehabilitation, neuroICU, and movement disorders are of interest.

Successful applicants are expected to establish and maintain vigorous clinical programs and/or externally funded research programs and participate in teaching.

Interested parties should submit an application, curriculum vitae and a statement of interest at <https://jobs.uic.edu>. Please also send the curriculum vitae and statement of interest to Jeffrey A. Loeb, MD, PhD c/o Joyce Gittens at (jywilson@uic.edu). The search will remain open until all positions have been filled.

For fullest consideration apply at the link by November 29, 2013.

The UIC is an AA/EOE