

Dr. Zain Guduru is Associate Professor of Neurology (Movement Disorders Section) at University of Kentucky. He is the Adult Neurology Residency Program Director.

He is the current President for Commonwealth Neurological Society (2024-2029).

He completed his medical school in India and Neurology residency from Allegheny General Hospital, Pittsburgh. Movement disorders fellowship was at Augusta University and trained by Dr. Kapil Sethi.

His predominant interests in movement disorders includes botulinum toxin injections for dystonia, Parkinson's disease research and Huntington's disease. In addition, he has interest in neurology and movement disorders education.